Red Deer Defeat Bassano

A Pair Crowd Out Monday Night. Monday night Bassano and Red Deer faced each other for the first time, and a fairly good game was the result, though the evening was chilly and it was hard to get up steam. Dunn pitched a fairly steady game for Red Deer, the score resulting 11 to 6 in favor of the home team.

Thelan started to pitch for Bassano and for some reason unknown to the spectators made no attempt to pitch, simply lobbing the ball over until he walked two men. Manager Cox immediately gave him a place on the bench while he himself went to left field, sending Mills in to pitch.

Mills was unsteady, and after Hurley had been retired to centre field, hit Clemenson and gave a base on balls to Gay, forcing in the first run. Bliss then hit for two bases, sending in three runners, and by the time the side was retired every batter on the team had fared alike and four runs had been scored. Apart from his wildness did not do so badly, but, as the box score will indicate, he hit two men, walked seven and made a wild pitch.

Whelan and Hurley had a rather prolonged altercation over a decision at second base. However, Whelan induced Hurley to continue the game by pulling out his watch and allowing him three minutes to get back to first.

Judging by the scores made in the games played in Red Deer the teams are rather well in pitching material. In every game played here the scores have been large. Dickinson of Red Deer was left behind in a Calgary hospital, while O'Neil, the star pitcher of the Bassano team, was taken to the Red Deer hospital suffering from a severe attack of grippe.

Score by innings—
Bassano—0 3 1 2 0 0 0—6
Red Deer—1 1 0 5 0 0 0—11

Summary—two base hits, Holmes, Gay, Bliss, Godfrey; three base hits, Raymond, Reddick, Clemenson; sacrifice fly, Pease; stolen bases, Reddick, Dunn, Daniels 2; Manning; bases on balls, of Thelan 2, of Mills 7; off Dunn 4; hit by pitcher, by Mills, Clemenson, Daniels; struck out, by Mills, Clemenson; by Dunn, Wells; wild pitches, Mills; double play, Persons to Stark; umpire, Whelan.

Last night's game could not be called a good exhibition by any stretch of the imagination. Manning again took the mound for the home boys and allowed practically nothing until the seventh, when he loosened up a bit and allowed the visitors to run three over in a bunch, and again in the 8th the dam-sitters got 2 by a few little errors. Pease pitched for Bassano, with Stark receiving, and the home boys found him easy right from the start, coming up four runs in the first inning, and in the 4th and 5th the game nearly developed into a farce, as Pease was almost afraid to put one over. The Red Deer infield played a good game, but the visiting infield could not do anything when they had a chance. Clemenson is keeping up his name as a batter, knocking them in all directions.

The score by innings—
Red Deer—0 3 1 4 3 1 0—16
Bassano—0 0 0 0 0 3 2—5
These two teams play the last of the series here to-night.

LAST WEEK'S GAMES

AT CALGARY.
Wednesday night Red Deer was defeated by 10 to 11 runs. The game should have been called at the seventh on account of darkness, but the score stood 10-7 in favor of Red Deer, and that could not be allowed. The next inning was played in the dark when Calgary won by four runs.

Thursday's game was called off on account of rain.

Friday's game was a tie, 7-7.

Saturday's two games were won by Calgary, 1-2 and 4-12.

Red Deer now stands third in the League.

His Lordship the Bishop of St. Albert will administer the Sacrament of Confirmation in the R.C. Church on Wednesday, 29th of May. The ceremony will begin at 10.30. Persons from the country who wish to receive the Sacrament should arrive the day before and give notice to Rev. Father Volson as soon as possible.

CEMENT BUILDERS, LIMITED

Most Modern Plant in the West

STARTED WORK MONDAY

After working hard all fall and winter, the Manager of Cement Builders, Limited, H. G. Murrin, had the proud satisfaction of seeing the wheels of his enterprise set in motion on Monday last.

Almost everything about the plant is new and entirely modern. Everything that adds to greater efficiency and saving of time and labor, every machine that was up-to-date and thoroughly tried was added to the works, and it is no claim by the company that there is no brick company doing business in the west with as up-to-date and modern machinery as that owned by the Cement Builders, Limited.

A new building, three stories high, has been erected, and a brick engine house for the splendid engine and boilers, a first class ten-chamber brick and concrete roof drying building, modern kilns, modern fans and other appliances make the whole outfit most complete.

The company have clay enough to make about 300,000 bricks, or enough to keep the Company busy for from seventeen to twenty years. A trestle bridge runs from the hill to the mill on which the cars run drawn by cable from the upper flat and controlled by engine power. The car is loaded direct from the day beds and drawn to the upper flat, where the clay is dumped into the first important machine. A track way is being out through the hill, and there will be heavy enough in this out for this year's output. In the fall the banks will be thrown down, and then the clay will be allowed to weather, allowing early operations in the spring. No other yard in Alberta is doing this. The clay will always be uniform and will allow of the company turning out a high quality of brick. The profits may be a little less, but the satisfaction will be much greater.

The clay, on reaching the upper flat, is dumped into the granulator, the largest of its kind in the west, with a capacity of 125,000 brick per day of ten hours.

From the granulator or disintegrator the clay is fed into the pug mill, a machine consisting of large iron rollers, which must crush everything that passes through them.

From the pug mill the pug is fed into the brick machine with a capacity of 100,000 per day.

From the brick machine the pug, or clay, is forced to the cutting table, where it is cut into proper sizes by a wire cutting machine and carried along the off bearing table by an endless belt, this table being 40 feet long. Besides this table there is a turn track, on which the cars are loaded and returned to the dryers which hold 300 cars, each car holding 640 bricks, making the capacity of the dryers 192,000 brick every 36 hours. The brick are then placed in the kilns and returned on the track to the brick machine.

The brick come out of the chambers dry, the heat being perfectly regulated by fans up to 400 lareheit, but any temperature of moisture or dryness can be secured as well as heat by a thorough mixing of heat from the boilers, there being eighty-two hundred feet of piping for this purpose. The hot air is forced through these pipes by a 180 inch disk fan, one of the largest in Canada.

There is no waste of broken brick, as all waste material is re-ground and passed through into the brick machine again by special process.

The whole plant is the best that could be procured on the continent of America, and was purchased from the American Clay Working Machinery Co., Bucyrus, Ohio, and was installed by the Cement Builders, Limited.

The power plant is equipped with two 150-horse power water-tube boilers, and with a 225-horse McEwan engine, and a smaller engine of 25-horse power from the same firm.

The company will have a kiln capacity of a million and a half of bricks, as four new kilns are being constructed of the most modern pattern to burn coal or wood, and one of the old kilns will be used. The battery, therefore, consists of five kilns, with a capacity of 300,000 each. The new kilns are being built nearer the railway track to facilitate loading on cars.

The same system of time saving and labor applies to the question of coal. When coal is unloaded from the cars it is carried on the company's own track by the gravity system to the part of the yard required for re-shipment, either to the kilns or to the engine house.

The clay from the time it enters the building to the time it is placed in the kilns, and the entire track, is covered so that the mill can run day in and day out with no stoppage by wet weather.

In connection with the other branches of the business, the company manufactures a cement roofing tile. This tile will be designed after the old Spanish tile pattern and will be made in a number of different colors, the two standard colors

MOTOR FIRE APPARATUS

The following is part of a letter received by Chief Meeres on the merits of motor fire apparatus:
Mr. H. Meeres, Chief Fire Dept.,
Dear Sir,—You letter of the 11th inst. re. "Information Motor Apparatus" to hand, and contents of same carefully noted. Now in reference to our machine failing us no less than four times, you tell your informant that his statement is absolutely false. Since we placed these two Segrave machines in service on the 2nd day of June last, they have not cost this city one cent for repairs, and have never refused to start on the button. We certainly have had great success with them, so much so that on the 15th of April last month only we awarded the contract for four more pieces of Segrave motors. I might inform you that this past winter has been a hard one on motor apparatus, owing to the varying operations which have been going on here, and the company tearing up too many streets, thinking that they could finish all before the next season set in, but they were caught, with the result that a good many of our streets were left all torn up during the whole winter months, and our department had occasion to travel over several of these roads when the mud was grinding in the drive chains, and I might mention the fact, with a load of 2,600 feet of 2 1/2 inch hose and seven men. In my own opinion one motor piece of apparatus is equal to two horse-drawn pieces.

I trust that you may be successful in getting your by-law carried; and at any time I may be of any service to you, why write. Wishing you every success, I am,
Yours truly,
T. DAVIS,
Chief Fire Department.

being grey and red. This shingle will be reinforced. The peculiar design of this shingle, for which the company own the patent, right for Canada, is such that they lock to the roof, and lock and interlock to each other, so that not a particle of dust, rain or sifting snow can penetrate their joints. Also, in connection with the tile, the company will manufacture all kinds of cement building blocks; dimension lumber, caps, door sills, window sills, lintels, columns, and decorative products, such as urns, vases, etc.

The capital of the company is fully subscribed, principally by Red Deer and English capital, and The Cement Builders, Limited, is financially one of the strongest companies doing business in Alberta.

There will be engaged about fifty hands at the outset, which will be increased to about one hundred by next year.

All the brick the company can make can find a ready sale, and the industry, under the able management of Mr. Murrin, promises to be the most progressive industry of its kind in Western Canada.

COURT OF REVISION.

Council Busy Thursday and Friday Evenings

FEW CHANGES MADE

The business of the Court of Revision can be summed up in the following resolutions passed Friday evening:

Moved by Councillors Galbraith and Botterill, that the following changes be made on the assessment roll. That the assessment of the following be reduced:

1st. Moore Estate—
4 acres, S.W. 1/4 of 20, north of river, west of C. & E., to $1,886.80 per acre.
57 acres, W. 1/4 of 17, south of river, to $800 per acre.
135 acres, S.E. 1/4 of 21, south of river, to $1,250 per acre.
54 acres, N.E. 1/4 of 21, south of river, to $500.
51 acres, S.W. 1/4 of 21, north of river, to $1,000 per acre.
160 acres, N.W. 1/4 of 21, north of river, to $400 per acre.
2nd. Western General Elec. Co.—
21 acres, pt. S.W. 1/4 of Sec. 20, to $1,500 per acre.
3rd. A. V. G. Allen—
Pt. of S.W. 1/4 of 21-28-27, to $500 per acre.

Moved by Councillors Botterill and Galbraith, that the following changes be made in the assessment for 1912:

Lot 6, Woodland, be reduced to $350 per acre.
Lots 29 and 30, block 16, be reduced to $1,500.
Lots 6, 7 and 8, block 5, be reduced to $1,000.
Lot 3, block —, Grandview, be reduced to $3,375.
Frosting tannery property, be reduced to $3,000.
McCune & Watt Bros., personal, be reduced to $2,000.
S. Wilson, personal, be reduced to $2,000.
W. T. Coote, personal, be reduced to $1,400.
Alberta Central Railway right-of-way, be reduced to $175 per acre.
C. & E. Townsite Co., part of N. E. Sec. 17-71, three acres, be reduced to $1,500 per acre.
C. & E. Townsite Co., part of Sec. 16, south of Munsen, 25.84 acres, be reduced to $3,000 per acre.
That lots from 1 to 24, block A, Parkvale, and from 25 to 46, block B, Parkvale, be reduced to $200 each.
That the lots in block A, Grandview, be reduced to $1400 per acre.
That west half of Riverview be reduced to acreage at $400 per acre; and that all other appeals be not allowed.

Thursday evening there was a full attendance of the Council, and a fair attendance of citizens present. The first case was that of the A.C.R. The Company, through their solicitor, Mr. Hagel of Calgary, claimed the property of the Company was assessed far too high, as it was purchased for $35,000 and was now assessed for $78,000. The general claim of the company was that, as this property was not purchased for subdivision purposes, it should be put in at the cost of acreage and only a fraction above cost.

The assessor contended the claim was equitable and fair. Others, who were quite as far out as the A.C.R., and had been assessed as high, had not appealed.

The Council, however, took the view that the company had overvalued the value, and they would entertain their claim to a certain extent.

Hugh Clark, Mr. Plank, and Mr. Brisson were heard regarding Grandview property, and J. Stewart, Geo. Best and Smith Land Co. regarding excessive tax on Parkvale lots.

These were all reduced. The Townsite Co. opposed their assessment of $555,000. Mr. Lott of Calgary, being present in the interest of his company, the claim was that assessment was too high. The assessment last year was $337,000.

The assessor showed there was no appeal on property in the neighborhood of Townsite property, and citizens were satisfied with the rate. Later on in the evening the Council reduced the A.C.R. assessment to $175 per acre.
Mr. Desant's assessment in Woodlands was reduced to $550 per acre.
Mr. Speight's assessment on lots near the steam landing was reduced to $2,500. J. Jas. Cruickshank's assessment of $12,500 on lots near the Windsor was reduced to $10,000. Mr. Loveland's land in Grandview was reduced to $1,500 per acre; the Freytag Tannery assessment was reduced to $3,000 for two acres; McCune & Watt, implement people, had their personal property assessment reduced from $3,600 to $2,000. S. Wilson's personal property was reduced from $3,000 to $2,000; W. T. Coote's assessment on personal property was reduced to $1,500, or 50 per cent. of his stock of $3,000.

The last case heard was that of the Red Deer Townsite Company. The Mayor remarked that the Company had always been fair to the town, and the town desired to be fair with the company. They were therefore willing to make a reduction of $61,400 in their assessment. The Mayor could not be fair to the electors or defend himself if he made a larger concession. The Council agreed with him.

The company desired a reduction of $100,000.

The Mayor contended all the property held by the company could be sold at the price assessed at, but it was not available. This company would not put it on the market and buyers had to go further afield to get land. This was a great injury to the town and he thought the townsite people should put their land on the market and give the south end of the town a chance to grow.

Mr. Lott said it was the intention of the company to put the land on the market as soon as the C.N.R. deal for right of way was completed, but he could not say when that would be.

The opinion of the Council was that the Townsite people should put their property on the market as soon as possible.

The Council then adjourned, it being midnight, to Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Friday evening the Mayor and Councillors, with the exception of Councillor Malcolm, were present. The time was taken up mostly with the Moore protests, and that of Mrs. Baird.

Eventually the motion at the beginning of this report was adopted, and the Council adjourned at 9:30 o'clock.

A tri-weekly train service from Prince Rupert to Skeena Crossing is now announced definitely by General Superintendent Mohan of the Grand Trunk Pacific. This train will be the first all-passenger train run out of the Pacific port and it is expected that the service will be inaugurated on May 1.

Announcement is made by officials of the Grand Trunk Pacific that preliminary contracts have been let by the company for the construction of the big dry-dock and ship-building plant at Prince Rupert. Contractors for the building of the piers, landing stage, building platform, and launching ways, have been given to British-American Construction Company, and representatives of that firm are now at the C.T.P. terminals making arrangements for commencing the work.

Bridget Brannigan Berates Bachelors

London, May 4.—Widespread interest has been excited by the amusing letter which "Bridget Brannigan" wrote to the Rural District Council of Dunham, County Meath, and which caused the councillors to order the bachelors occupants of their laborers' cottages either to get married within three months or vacate the houses. She complained that she was an exile in England, because the bachelors would not marry, and that the housekeeping of the bachelors spoiled the cottages.

At yesterday's meeting of the council the chairman said the clerk had received a number of letters from England, some asking to be placed in communication with eligible bachelors, and others from English bachelors, inquiring the address of Miss Bridget Brannigan, and prepaid addressed envelopes for replies. Sixteen letters were also addressed to Miss Brannigan at the local post office.

One letter asked if it were any "bearing your girls from Bristol," who "would be very pleased, owing to the dreadful state of the country, at present, to settle in the apparently peaceful village of Dunham with good husbands."

"I am an English girl, aged twenty-nine, anxious to settle down to matrimonial bliss," said a letter with a complimentary address. "I am an English girl, aged twenty-nine, anxious to settle down to matrimonial bliss," said a letter with a complimentary address. "I am an English girl, aged twenty-nine, anxious to settle down to matrimonial bliss," said a letter with a complimentary address.

The council orders the letters to remain with the clerk for inspection by any interested persons.

Three Years in Pen For Dice Loader

Moose Jaw, May 14.—At the resumption of the district court this morning before Judge Dewdney, the case of conspiring to defraud against W. Krickhof, alias Carig, alias the Winnipeg Jew, by Jake Kruger, was dealt with. He is in company with a man named Miller, was arrested in Edmonton some time ago, and brought back to the city by detective. He was charged with $300, in addition to another $400 loaned him on a diamond ring during a game of dice at the old Empress hotel. John Taylor, formerly a detective here, testified to having told Craig and his associates to get out of the city on three different occasions on account of their unsavory reputations.

E. Chisholm, on behalf of the accused, dealt mainly with the absence of any direct evidence, stating that Kruger was an experienced gambler and no "easy mark."

Mr. Grayson contended that the accused was an undesirable character, and had been ousted from the house of gambling, and had been repeatedly ordered from town. The evidence pointed conclusively to the fact that the dice used by Craig had been doctored, and would rest in any position that he wished.

In addressing the court, his honor stated that there had been conclusive evidence to the effect that the dice were loaded, and he would have to convict the prisoner for defrauding Kruger. Sentence of three years in the Prince Albert penitentiary was passed. An associate of Craig, named Labish, alias Miller, will come up for trial tomorrow.

Mixed Races Best

A writer in the North American Review deals interestingly with the results of the mixing of races which has taken place in the United States—a mixture that is being duplicated here in Canada.

Alexander Hamilton, one of the foremost statesmen of the Revolutionary period, was of mixed French and English ancestry. St. Gaudens, the greatest sculptor America has produced, represented a still greater mixture of blood. Roosevelt has at least three strains of European blood in his make-up.

The effect on the new nation at large is still more marked. The phenomenal progress of the United States in the industrial arts is not all due to the abundance of resources at command. Much of it is the result of the fact that the new land has attracted the adventurous, the mentally and physically strong, from all lands.

The story of the United States in all these things in the past century will be repeated in Canada in the present.

They've invented a new "booz" in Missouri. Its ingredients are rain water, fish berries, prune juice and ginger. Two rounds of frapped fish berries are said to make one see more variegated sea-serpents than several pints of squirrel whiskey.

HOW BYE-ELECTIONS ARE RUN BY SIFTON

Old Liberal Attempts to Bribe the Electorate Being Made in the South

Lethbridge, May 17.—A year ago, when the provincial bye-election was on between Maunsell and Patterson, a gang was set at work fixing the approach to the McKinnin bridge, quite close to Maelsed. This gang was taken off the job the day before the election. Since then nothing has been done to improve conditions there, until yesterday, when a gang was again sent in the same spot to continue the work left unfinished a year ago. Several men and teams are at work and the people are smiling.

This seems to be the way the Sifton government hopes to carry the bye-elections in the south country, the bridge mentioned being in Claresholm constituency. The open attempt at what is nothing more or less than bribery is being laughed at by the electors. Premier Sifton and Mitchell are doing campaign work in Maelsed, having spent the day there yesterday.

The coming of a big circus is always one of those features in the news of the day which cannot be very well crowded out of the papers, and so it is when Walter Murphy, General Contracting Agent for the Sells Photo Circus arrived this morning and announced that the big show would visit here on August 1st, all the young people, and not a few of the older ones, sat up and began to take notice.

It will perhaps be remembered that last season, and for the first time in history of big tented attractions, the people of the Northwest were privileged to see the Sells Photo circuses at a nominal figure, which at first and until the big show itself arrived, was hardly to be credited, considering the fact that even the smallest and most insignificant animal and wild west shows tilt their prices after crossing the Canadian border.

Mr. Murphy assures us that this season the policy of the cut rate price still prevails, and that the circus will come back to us enlarged and beautified in many respects. How these people give such a magnificent performance for the money is one of the modern wonders in the show business, but the fact they still adhere to it is positive proof that they have found it eminently successful.

Have You a Skin Rash?

Zam-Buk Will End It.

For skin rashes, eruptions, eczema, etc., either in adults or children, there is nothing known to science which equals Zam-Buk in its quickness and certainty of its curative power. Mr. Raymond Vubler, of Allamogus, Ont., writes: "I have tried Zam-Buk for many ailments, and every time have found it successful. Some time ago I had a bad rash all over my body. I tried home-made salves, herb salves, and various home-made preparations, and these proved of no use, but when I tried Zam-Buk I was cured in a quarter of the time that I had been experimenting in vain with other preparations."

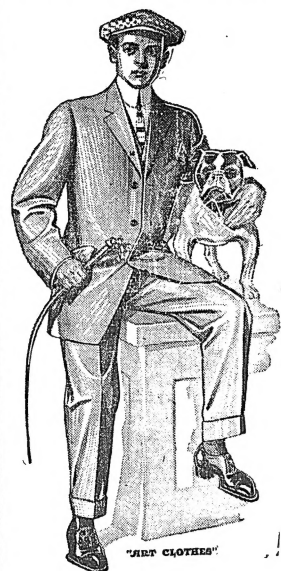

"On another occasion I had one of my fingers crushed, and in that case also Zam-Buk was the only remedy I used. It healed the wound splendidly."

"My boy had boils, and once again Zam-Buk brought about a complete cure. We have also used it as a household balm, for the injuries and skin diseases which are common to every person, and can say that in our experience there is nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk uses its unique healing power to certain herbal extracts it contains. Unlike most ointments it contains no poisonous coloring matter, no animal fat, but is purely herbal. For eczema, piles, blood poison, abscesses, ulcers, cuts, burns, and all skin injuries and diseases it is without equal and should be in every home. 50c box all druggists and stores. Use also Zam-Buk soap, 25c tablet.

The clothes particular man and young man will find here---SATISFACTION. He will find here a standard of tailoring in clothing that, involving hand workmanship where handwork is essential to fit, cannot be surpassed outside of complete hand-tailoring, such as is indulged in only by certain exclusive New York tailors and is possible only at double and treble W. E. Lord Co's prices.

SEMI-READY CLOTHING gives longest and most satisfactory wear. There is all the class and style to it that can be asked for. The clothes are all wool and of English weave, and all the goods are all the go this year and we have a good variety and ask you to come in and see them. Blue Serge Suits are also stylish and always a good investment. In Fancy worsteds we have a very strong showing. THE PRICES OF ALL ARE VERY LOW---FOR EXAMPLE---

A brown mixed tweed, a kind of pin-head weave, really black and brown; 2-button sack coat with deep vent, long lapels, fancy cuff buttons, belt loop and side straps; of course a very nice suit for a dressy young man, and the price is only 13.50

A handsome olive green diagonal worsted, 2 button coat with fancy cuff buttons, well set up shoulders and strongly lined throughout. The price of this suit is just an even 15.00

A dark brown worsted with a faint purple stripe, cut with a very smart effect, at 18.00

One of the very latest--a Hopsack Nobleman suit, in a navy blue; 2 button cutaway in the English style; 6 button vest; belt loops, side straps and cuffs on trousers if wanted, just the suit for a summer vacation and the price only 20.00

A handsome tweed suit in a dark brown tone, coat form fitting, well set up shoulders, haircloth and canvas lined, at 20.00

Here's another good one--an olive green fancy worsted with a dark purple stripe, a very attractive suit and thoroughly made, at only 25.00

And lots more besides these. You had better come and see them today.

THE BY-ELECTIONS.

Premier Sifton has doubled his Cabinet to appease the warring factions of his followers that he may remain in office a little longer. That he has been compelled to do so by threats of political assassination is well known. So long ago as the downfall of the Rutherford-Cross government, the defunct attorney-general of that administration held an open air meeting in the streets of Edmonton, the burden of his song and the wailing chorus of his supporters then being that Mr. Sifton would have to take Cross back into his Cabinet. Since that time every man in the Cross faction has been wearing down the endurance of the present unhappy Premier with intimations that he would be driven from office unless the demands of Cross were conceded. One of the leading members of the Attorney-General's bodyguard has stated that in caucus, during the recent session, they—the Cross faction—had compelled the Premier to turn a complete somersault. It is generally supposed that the somewhat referred to involved taking Cross into the Cabinet, and covering the inquiry of a $20,000 per mile guarantee in the A. & G. W. by a similar guarantee in connection with the Edmonton, Dunvegan and B.C. Railway, which is the A. & G. W. of Sifton. But the Cross faction is not the only one in the Liberal party, the insurgent leader, John R. Boyle, and Charles Stewart, of Sedgewick, had also to be considered. Then it became necessary that the Premier should have his own intimate, personal friend, Malcolm McKenzie, to support him and to checkmate the designs of Cross, the moral force of Stewart, and the wily treachery of Boyle.

Now let us for a moment examine the record and merits of these men. C. W. Cross is a young man of ability and ambition, more ambition than ability, unfortunately, for the province. The best interests of a province are always in grave danger when public men seek office for motives of ambition, rather than from a sincere and disinterested desire to serve the commonwealth. It is impossible to gainsay the fact that the moral sense of the best Liberals in Edmonton and in Alberta have been outraged by the action of Premier Sifton in yielding to the yugoslav of the Cross faction and taking back into the attorney-generalship a man whose own acts in that office in the last administration were reported by the leading judges of the Province to have been extremely suspicious, so much so that they drove him from office. We sympathize with the Premier in his dilemma; it was inevitable that he should be impaled upon one horn or the other—that he should either accept Cross or resign. We do not think the Premier acted wisely, for the loss of office is always to be preferred to the loss of honor.

No logic can possibly save Cross from the facts of his record. He is busy trying to convince the electors of Edmonton that he is returning to the Cabinet in order to push railway bills, but he says nothing of his record as a railway builder, which is to say the least, extremely shady. Twenty thousand dollars' worth of rotting ties, for which the poor farmers have not yet been paid; a mile and a half of prairie land grade outside of the city of Edmonton, and a an attempt is to be made to bring in gangs of men from west of Edmonton who are working on the G.T.P. in order to plug the election for Cross. If this attempt is carried out it is more than likely that the jail accommodation of Edmonton will have to be supplemented considerably.

Charles Stewart is contesting Sedgewick against W. J. Blair. Blair is making a fine fight and stands a good chance to win. The present member is personally a fine man, against whom nothing can be said. Many of his best friends feel, however, that his position is illegal and untenable. He was one of the prominent opponents of the A. & G. W. deal, and is said afterwards to have stated that he would not support Mr. Sifton, even as a private member, if he ever attempted to take C. W. Cross back into the Cabinet. It is too bad that such a good man should besmirch his record by consenting to go into the same Cabinet with Cross. We are sorry indeed to find that the otherwise excellent member for Sedgewick does not belong to the ranks of those whom the best of office cannot buy.

John R. Boyle is the new minister of education. There is nothing "tall" or "sun-kissed" about him. He is said to have taught school on a third class certificate, and to have been admitted to the bar at a time the qualifications were not exacting. He is a man about the size of Hudson's or a little taller, and would make a very good English translation of the insignificant Frenchman from St. Albert. He tried hard to get the solicitorship of the A. & G. W., but Cross beat him out on that. He is said to have then tried to force his way in the Rutherford Cabinet, doubtless smelling the carriage train after; than as a last resort he placed himself at head of the insurgent movement, and lashed his political enemies with uncommon fury. As a moral force he is a negligible quantity, not taller than his scanty physical inches, and perhaps the most correct estimate of him would be to say that he is merely an inferior politician.

Malcolm McKenzie, the new provincial treasurer, is an intimate and confidential friend of Premier Sifton. In session time they are as twin brothers, or as David and Jonathan. The cleverness of the new treasurer cannot be doubted, but his record is perhaps the most notorious and disgraceful in the Province of Alberta. He is charged with many crimes, with having stolen the Blairmore townsite, and with having failed as public administrator to properly disburse and account for the estates of the unfortunate victims of the Frank disaster. These charges are being repeated in public print at the present moment, but everything that the Liberal machine can do to elect the boss friend of Premier Sifton will be done. Mr. McKenzie is of the opinion that the battle of the legislature is a battle of the press, and we predict that he will win.

In Cardston another intimate friend of Premier Sifton has for two years been representative while residing in Salt Lake City, Utah, and conducting an immigration scheme from Southern Alberta to the reclaimed waste lands of Nevada. This public scandal, and the Premier's acceptance of Woolf's support during the recent session, has done much to alienate from the Liberal candidate in that riding the support of the best people in the constituency. John Parli-h is the Conservative candidate, a man of fine personal character. It is not improbable that this riding will return a supporter to the ranks of the Opposition.

HIS FATAL WEAKNESS.

The Vergville Observer, a staunch Liberal paper, voices the sentiment of the people of Alberta when it says: "The by-election now pending in Edmonton is one upon the elevation of C. W. Cross again to the Attorney-Generalship of the province is not without its interesting features to those electoral districts which have no direct interest in any private member Edmonton may choose to select for the legislature; but which have a very strong interest in the make-up of the government."

Mr. Cross, in appealing to the Edmonton electors, is most unfortunate in reiterating those sentiments which made him before so unacceptable to many of the other electoral districts. He asserts as his sole object in returning to a portfolio that he desires to see Edmonton grow, to see Edmonton reap every benefit from railway extension, to make Edmonton in every respect the only point in Alberta worth consideration.

Now no man has the slightest idea of knowing Edmonton, which is very good city indeed and promises to be a better one, but it is merely on the part of the Attorney-General that the Province (not the Attorney-General of Edmonton) is to be eternally townships, extending as far as Halifax, and on his return he will go west as far as Victoria. Later he will go to Esquimalt and will connect with the British authorities in the defence scheme to be worked, and also to take part in the British military manoeuvres on Salubrious Plains. Col. Hughes has taken a firm grip of the department all round, and it is generally acknowledged that the Canadian Minister of Militia has such a knowledge of military details, which is resulting in a general economizing of the funds.

SHOOTING WHALES

An Industry Which Has Grown to Large Proportions

While hunting has always been a picturesque industry, even in the hardy days of yore, when the ocean monsters are pursued in the steep and are shot with machine guns, the performance is even more interesting, if it is not quite as romantic. The whale industry is one of which British Columbia is proud, and it has been developed to large proportions, though still in its infancy. As yet only one company has a fleet of whalers at work, its headquarters being at Victoria, B.C.

Two thousand Whales were captured along the coast last year, of which 1,000 were taken by the company. The method of operation of sighting a whale is to steam as close to it as possible, and then to use a well-directed shot from a machine gun, and then tow it to the nearest whaling station, where it is hauled out to a suitable stage by machinery and cut up so that every portion of the whale is utilized. From the blubber sperm oil is extracted. The body bones are crushed, ground and sent to the mills. The whale bone is cut into the jaws, and then shipped out to Dundee, Scotland, to be made into the various commodities from the residue of the blubber and lean meat, guano and glue are made. Japan buys a good deal of whale meat which is used for food. As whales are worth from $5,000 to $10,000 each, the value of the industry is obvious.

The Opposition platform pledges its members to place the administration of the liquor license ordinances beyond the control of party politics, and also provides for a vote of the electors on the question of prohibition.

The Opposition platform declares against the centralizing of the land titles in the hands of the government. This is a clause which should meet with the favor of all the constituencies at present open.

The Opposition platform stands for the transfer of the natural resources of Alberta from the Dominion to the Province. The only difficulty with this is that the natural resources have been accomplished in the way of wasting the public credit, it is hard to see how the natural resources would be left to the people after a few years of government by this new combination of ministers.

The Opposition platform offers the only practical solution of the congestion of wheat transportation that has yet been proposed by urging the construction of large interior storage elevators at convenient central points. In this as in other respects the Opposition shows a business instinct which the present government entirely lacks.

Other clauses in the platform of the Opposition party will be discussed during the campaign. But enough has been said to show that those who justly oppose the Sifton government are prepared, if the people so desire, to administer the affairs of Alberta in a businesslike and progressive manner. As compared with the policy of litigation and extravagance which Mr. Sifton has followed, and the heterogeneous bunch of scragging politicians that he has gathered about him, there should be no question in the minds of the electors of the merits of the policies as to which way they will cast their votes on May 27.

TO DISCUSS CANADA'S NAVY

Hon. J. D. Hazen Going to England to Consult British Admiralty

Ottawa, May 10.—The Cabinet meets daily and there are signs that all of the work left after the session has been cleared. The Cabinet is now endeavoring to clear the deck in preparation for the departure of the minister, who is anticipated coming into touch in different parts of the country.

It is probable that Premier Borden will sail for England at the end of this month or the beginning of June, with the Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, both Mr. Borden and Mr. Hazen will consult with the British Admiralty on the proposed new naval scheme, and Mr. Foster may take part also, as one of the chief planks in the scheme is the protection of the trade routes between Great Britain and Canada. Any scheme which will be worked out will primarily have as its object the best means by which in time of danger the arteries of British and Canadian trade shall be kept free from attack.

Colonel Hughes will not go to England at present, as he has planned out a comprehensive scheme of travel through the Dominion. He left on Tuesday night for a ten days' tour through the Eastern

Liberal-Conservative Association Elect Officers

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Red Deer Conservative Association was held in the Oddfellows' Hall on Saturday evening, May 18th. Notwithstanding the wet night, there was a good turnout of the members and their friends.

President P. H. Tallman was in the chair, and put the business through with his usual promptness.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: Hon. Pres.—Hon. R. L. Borden. Hon. Vice Pres.—E. Michener, M.P.

Past Pres.—F. H. Tallman. Sec.—W. J. Botterill. Vice Presidents—G. H. Lindsay, M. A. Munro, Dr. Gray, an "amateur" Secretary Treasurer—W. H. Hadley, Executive Committee—A. McCaskey, Dr. Colison, G. W. Greene, H. W. Parks, F. Piper, W. E. Trump, J. A. Carswell, P. Pidgeon, J. R. Davidson, W. K. Payne.

After the business of the meeting was disposed of, the meeting was favored by speeches from E. Michener, M.P., and Dr. Hunter. This was followed by a short programme of songs, which were sung with humor and with a good swinging chorus, which was taken up by all present and thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Hadley's singing of "The Old Folks at Home" was a humorous with a good swinging chorus, which was taken up by all present and thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Hadley's singing of "The Old Folks at Home" was a humorous with a good swinging chorus, which was taken up by all present and thoroughly enjoyed.

The evening's proceedings closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Leslieville Literary Society

The L.L.S. held another successful meeting on Tuesday last, May 10th, in the Prairie Road school house. This was the closing meeting for the season, as before announced; the attendance was good, in spite of the somewhat unfavorable condition of the roads. The programme, which was a very long one, passed off well, and was greatly appreciated by all lovers of good literature. Readings were given from the following of Dickens' books: "Nicholas Nickleby," "Dombey and Son," "Great Expectations," and "Old Curiosity Shop"; also a dialogue from the last named, which was well acted by M. M. MacLean as "Samson Brass" and Charlie Thompson as "Mr. Quilp." Miss Godkin as "Mrs. Quilp," and Mrs. C. A. Card as "Miss Finnick." A recitation given by Miss Edna McCormick, in which "Grandma" contrasts present day manners and customs with those of her own day, was extremely amusing. Miss McCormick also recited a poem, "The March of the Cameron Men," by Mr. MacLean, was received with great applause. The musical selections were an instrumental solo by Mrs. MacLean, "Orders Grey" by Mr. R. Patterson. Other musical selections were an instrumental solo by Mrs. MacLean, "Orders Grey" by Mr. R. Patterson.

What are the Wild Waves Saying? by Mrs. Card and Mr. MacLean. Duets by Miss Edna McCormick and Miss Violet Godkin. "Canadian Home Song" and "I've Gwine Back to Dixie" by Roy Case, Charlie Thompson and Mrs. Bailey. "Beautiful Isle of the Sea," solo parts by Mr. MacLean, chorus by quartette. "Tenting Tonight" and "Canada, Our Homeland" were sung as choruses.

The meeting began with singing of "Maple Leaf," and ended with "God Save the King." These meetings have been greatly enjoyed by all who have attended, and will be resumed at an early date next fall, for the L. L. S. is indeed "here to stay."

The New Titanic

London, May 7.—Two new liners for the White Star Line are now present under construction at the yards of Harland and Wolff, Belfast. One of these vessels, the keel of which was laid, the other will be nearly twenty feet longer than the "Titanic," and will be fitted and finished throughout on the same imposing scale as were the "Olympic" and "Titanic." In view of the loss of the latter, the work of completing this new vessel will be accelerated.

Every available man in the Queen's land works is engaged in order to have the liner finished as soon as possible.

It will be over a year before the new ship will be completed, and sufficient time will be afforded to embody the latest details regarding lifeboats and other life-saving appliances which the Board of Trade may direct after the forthcoming inquiry.

Eckville Notes

The last carload of horses, etc., belonging to Hopgood Bros., left on the C.N.R. freight Tuesday evening on route to St. Anne, Terry, from there they will travel over land to Athabasca Landing.

Messrs. Bentley & Son had the misfortune to lose a fine large work horse this week.

Mitzen Bros. are busy utilizing a well at the town. The citizens hope they will get a flow.

A. C. Loster purchased the driver recently owned by J. J. Clausen. He now has three teams on this end of the government rail route.

"All Hands on Deck" at the town on May 24th, if you want to enjoy a good time this year.

Seeding is about finished in this locality.

Martin White from Prairie Grange paid a short visit here this week.

E. R. and C. P. Mitzen returned this week from a short visit with their sister, Miss Emma Mitzen, in Edmonton.

Opening of Holt Avenue

Red Deer, Alta., May 20th, 1912. To the Editor of The News.

Dear Sir,—As my name was mentioned prominently in connection with the opening up of First and Second Avenue South West at the Council meeting, where a petition was presented, would you allow me space in your paper to try and set myself right before the Council. In the first place, the petition was never intended as a censure on Commissioner Stephenson, but only as a reminder that the people had their eyes upon him, and also upon the industries of the town, and that was the view I am an "amateur" was given by the people who signed the petition, as mostly every man read it carefully over before signing, and with the exception of two, every man I presented it to signed it. Councillor Galbraith appears to think that the whole Council should have been censured. So do I, but for that omission I hope the Lord will forgive me, for it never entered my mind that they didn't deserve it. But I am glad to think they didn't forget their duty so far as to throw the petition overboard; and if any little suggestion I have made will help such a needed improvement as the petition called for, my time will not have been spent in vain. Now to come to the practical part of the petition. I have a suggestion to make, also a business proposition. Our Mayor seems favorably inclined to the opening of Holt Avenue to Victoria St., but thinks it would be a hard proposition to get from them to the street asked for by the petitioners. But I understand that the Council has it under consideration the opening of Holt Avenue to Victoria St., through the Piper brick yard to the intersection of street back on Tuesday last, May 10th, in the Prairie Road school house.

This was the closing meeting for the season, as before announced; the attendance was good, in spite of the somewhat unfavorable condition of the roads. The programme, which was a very long one, passed off well, and was greatly appreciated by all lovers of good literature.

Reciprocity is Dead, Says Taft

The President Explains the Colonel's Position of Some Months Ago

Dexter, Ohio, May 13.—President Taft in a speech here today referred to a Canadian reciprocity, and admitted "the thing is dead."

"They tell me this is a Roosevelt town," was his opening remark to the crowd that met his train.

"It is," yelled a man on the station platform.

"They say you are against me," continued the President, "because I was in favor of reciprocity. Well, I was. I was in favor of reciprocity because I believed it for the good of the farmers and every other class."

"We sell of foodstuffs and agricultural products to Canada four times what they sell to us," declared Mr. Taft. "They cannot raise the wheat, there, they can only raise the hardiest cereals and it would be greatly to the benefit of the farmers, but the thing is dead. Now, what I want to say to you, you are utterly illogical in opposing me on account of reciprocity when the fact is that before I entered into reciprocity, because I wrote to Theodore Roosevelt and consulted about it and told him all the argument both ways. He recommended me more than once to the business and approved of it in every way. Now that he finds that reciprocity is not popular with the farmers he recants and says he has changed his mind about it."

LITTLE DARKY PORTER IDOLIZES BOSS MABEE

Haunted Halls of Hospital When His Master Was Taken Ill and Collapsed When Death Was Announced—A Pathetic Figure at the Funeral

Port Rowan, Ont., May 9.—Tramping doggedly along the dusty country roads, even within a few feet of the house, the most heart-stirring figure in the funeral procession yesterday was the late Judge Mabey, chairman of the Dominion railway board, was the little colored porter of the dead commissioner's private.

The little porter "idolized" his boss. When the chief commissioner was stricken the porter haunted the corridors of the hospital. When the news of death came he collapsed. On Tuesday night he was taken to St. Michael's hospital suffering from nervous prostration, and he appeared at the Union station eager to follow the dead commissioner, remains to his last resting place.

At Port Rowan he took his place behind the funeral carriage and walked along regardless of the dust and rough road, almost in a state of collapse.

The church service over, the gathering began to file by the casket. The last attendants had started to close the top when the little porter moved forward hesitatingly. The stool before the casket for a moment then began to cry in a queer, silent manner. Some took him away, and as he neared the door he began to sway and would have fallen but for a kindly arm. He followed the remains to the grave side and stayed until the end.

The Control of Insect Pests in Canada

The Division of Entomology of the Experimental Farms Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, has recently issued a bulletin by Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, on "The Control of Insect Pests in Canada."

An account is given of the history of the war against insect pests in Canada, and the manner in which insect pests have invaded the country as it has been gradually opened up and cultivated. The manner in which the Dominion and Provincial governments are endeavoring by legislation and other means to prevent the introduction of insect pests into Canada, and the measures of control of these pests already here is described. An interesting summary of the various lines of work undertaken and carried on by the Division of Entomology at Ottawa is given and the general public will no doubt be surprised at the many problems which come within the scope of the Entomologists who are called upon to deal with insects in their relations to all the varied activities of man; insects affecting farm crops, fruit growing, forest and shade trees; insects attacking man's possessions and infesting houses, attacking domestic animals and families affecting the health of man. All insects, however, are not injurious, and the work of the Entomologist includes bees and bee-keeping and the study of parasitic and other enemies which may be of assistance in obtaining control of insect pests.

Copies of this publication, Bulletin No. 9 (Second Series) Experimental Farms, may be obtained from the Publication Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Successor to Hays is Yet In Doubt

Ottawa, May 15.—Nothing is real known here as to who Mr. Hays' successor is likely to be. Several names have been mentioned, including Sir Thomas Tait and E. J. Chamberlain, general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, but in all cases it is believed there has been nothing more than a speculative basis for the conjecture made.

The choice of a new general manager will not be made until the arrival in Canada of Mr. Smithers, the president of the Grand Trunk.

Mr. George S. Graham, minister of railways, who passed through Ottawa this afternoon en route from Brockville says there is absolutely nothing in the report that he will succeed the late general manager of the Grand Trunk. Mr. Graham said that he had not even seen the dispatch in the newspapers, and became aware of the lower stage than telegrams of inquiry and congratulations commenced to pour in on him.

"MAXWELL AND SON"

By E. Newton-Bungey, in M.A.P.

Mr. Stephen Maxwell said "Thank Heaven" when he was told that his son, Regie, was coming home. He said it emphatically but reverently, for he had prayed diligently that the child might be a boy.

"There'll be a son again, after all," he murmured, "Maxwell and Son, established in 1824, and now all the time. But I thought I was going to be the first Maxwell to break the line."

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell had been married fifteen years without their children having been blessed with children, though they had longed for a little one of their own. Now Mr. Maxwell was forty, and a son had been born to him after he had lost hope.

"How pleased the old dad would have been," he muttered. "He thought there wouldn't be any more Maxwell & Son after me."

A clever business man, Stephen Maxwell had made of Maxwell & Son more than half a dozen of his ancestors put together. When the business had come into his father's hands it had been in very low water, and it was a long time improving, with the result that Stephen Maxwell had been sent to a free school, and taken away at the earliest possible moment to work in the firm at a lower wage than any other clerk.

However, the business was pulled round, and when the elder Maxwell died, it was quite a flourishing concern, going on steadily improving under Stephen's guidance, though all the while he was grieving secretly for the loss of his old man, for there was no son, nor did there seem likely to be one.

As the boy grew up, so Mr. Maxwell's business increased by leaps and bounds, for he had Regie to work for him, and he was a good worker, very different upbringing from his own, and he sent him to an expensive preparatory school, from thence to a well-known public school, and eventually Regie went to Oxford.

Regie, a good-looking school and college, and the father's pride in his son's success was indescribable.

Without waiting to hear whether his father replied, Regie strode jauntily down the stairs. As a matter of fact, his father did not reply, he just sat down and rested his face on his hand.

He was in the same position an hour later when his wife came to look at the son who was coming home.

"Steve!" she cried, in alarmed tones. "Steve! Aren't you well?"

"It's all right, wife," he replied, "I was only thinking."

Regie and he have been talking, he added, "and we think it'll be better for me to go to the office for a moment to clear his throat to go into a profession, so he's going to be a barrister."

"Oh, Steve, aren't you disappointed?"

"Just a little, wife, but, as long as my boy is happy, we mustn't mind. Wonder what Alice will think?" he exclaimed suddenly.

She was disappointed, Steve, he thought, but he was more of the boy when he went into the business, but I suppose he'll be out as much as ever.

"Sometimes I think he cares for his more than he does, wife," murmured Mr. Maxwell. "But let's go down to the girl. I expect she's wondering what's become of her pretty cousin."

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell were not blind to the state of affairs, and it pleased them highly, for they desired no more than Alice for their son's wife. Many a happy hour they passed in the garden, and they planned for the young couple's future.

They hoped they would live in the same house, but Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell was quite prepared to buy a house and furnish it for his boy, in addition to the house in which he intended to give him when he entered the business.

For a long time, Alice and Maxwell and Son went on into another generation.

Stephen Maxwell was over sixty now, but he looked, acted and felt as though he were ten years younger.

Alice Maxwell counted the weeks until the vacations came round and brought Regie. She looked quite considerable during the two years following her father's death; her beauty, her grace, her sunny disposition, but she would dispense with them all but Regie.

"Why, Alice, you grow prettier every time I see you," said her cousin, when he came down for his last vacation from Oxford.

The girl flushed a fiery crimson, and her heart beat furiously at the words, she was content to find approval in Regie's eyes. But he showed no signs of returning the love she lavished on him in secret, and his heart grew heavy in these days.

Regie's career in this Oxford was a series of triumphs. He had got a double first and had secured a century at Lord's against Cambridge, amongst other honors, and he had won his father's approval.

"I do hope you won't work him too hard at the office, Steve," said Mrs. Maxwell.

"Don't worry your heart, wife, there won't be an easier job at first under the sun. But he'll want to work presently—it's in our blood, though there'll be no holding him back."

Mr. Regie's room was dusted and aired every day now, ready for his tenant, and very often Mr. Maxwell would stoil into it and gaze round, rubbing his hands and chuckling with delight.

At length Regie came down finally from Oxford, and was told his father that he had his filing for the day. He obeyed readily, dining out and going to theatre nearly every night.

"I wish we saw more of our boy," said Mrs. Maxwell one evening, her expression slightly worried.

"So we will when he gets into harness," rejoined her husband.

He checked to himself a great deal these days, for he had a secret. He had ordered a motor which was to take Regie and himself to the office and bring them home every day. He meant

It to come as a great surprise to the boy, and he often pictured these four years in Regie's company.

One evening, Regie came down dressed for a dinner at the Savoy, when his father called to him from his workshop, and asked him to do some work in immaculate evening dress contrasting curiously with the little man in his somewhat shabby velvet suit.

"What's the row, gov'nor? Mind my smoking?"

"Have one of mine, Regie," exclaimed Mr. Maxwell eagerly, taking down a box of cigars.

Regie smiled in a slightly superior manner.

"Thanks, gov'nor," he said, "but I prefer my own. Carondelet and I import them from Havana, you know."

"Lord Carondelet!" cried Regie Maxwell in tones of awe.

"That's the boy," replied Regie earnestly. "But what do you want me for?"

"I thought I'd just tell you that your month's holiday will be up on Saturday, my boy."

Regie eyed, and stared moodily at the smoke of his cigar.

"Your room's all ready at the office, gov'nor, for a fortnight."

Mr. Maxwell began to smile as he wondered whether he should tell Regie about the motor, or not, but he decided to keep it as a glorious surprise for Monday morning.

"I've been meaning to speak to you about the business, gov'nor," began Regie slowly.

"What is it, Regie, want a bit longer fling?" asked Mr. Maxwell in disappointed tones, for he had been looking forward so much to Monday morning.

"Fact is," blurted out Regie desperately, "I don't want to go into the business at all."

"Oh!" gasped his father.

"I don't want to go into trade. I want to be in a profession," Regie went on. "What's the good of my getting a double first at Oxford if I'm to be moved up in a police office all day?"

Mr. Maxwell gazed at his son, but no reply came to his lips. He felt suddenly weary and broken. This was the end of twenty-one years of hope. His face was gray, throaty.

"I want to read for the bar, gov'nor," said Regie, still not daring to meet his father's gaze.

Mr. Maxwell gulped down the lump in his throat, and a sad little smile crossed his face.

"The bar, Regie," he said slowly. "You must let me hear to go about it."

"Father!"

Regie was so amazed that he used a term which his friends would have regarded as "very middle class."

Why, I thought you were so keen on me going into the office," he went on.

"I thought you would have come, Regie," he said. "About your business," he added, "I suppose you want to be a barrister?"

"That's what Alice will think," he said. "I'll tell you all about it another night; can't keep my party waiting. Good night!"

Without waiting to hear whether his father replied, Regie strode jauntily down the stairs. As a matter of fact, his father did not reply, he just sat down and rested his face on his hand.

He was in the same position an hour later when his wife came to look at the son who was coming home.

"I wish we saw more of our boy," said Mrs. Maxwell one evening, her expression slightly worried.

"So we will when he gets into harness," rejoined her husband.

He checked to himself a great deal these days, for he had a secret. He had ordered a motor which was to take Regie and himself to the office and bring them home every day. He meant an evening when he was supposed to be studying Gray's Inn he was playing bridge at a club.

He began to lose more than he could afford to, until he found himself rather a tight corner. His father had only recently given him a handsome watch, and he did not like to go to him again so soon.

Then a friend told him of a Mr. Jacobson in the City, whose sole object in life, according to his own story, was to help young men in trouble. To him Regie applied, and asked for a loan of five hundred pounds.

"Certainly," my boy, certainly, delighted," murmured the moneylender with a greedy familiarity.

"Of course, my dear boy, there's just one little matter, you see, you've got to give me security."

"I had not thought of that."

Mr. Jacobson smiled benevolently. "It is not of much account, but I like to be businesslike. You got your father's watch, didn't you?"

"He's Maxwell, of Maxwell and Son, in Blunquage Street."

"You say that," Jacobson exclaimed, "don't you see, my dear boy, Maxwell & Son is not good for nothing."

For the first time Regie experienced some pride in his father's business. He had not occurred to him before that Mr. Maxwell held any position, but it was obvious from Jacobson's remarks that the name of Maxwell and Son was thought very highly of in the City.

After certain formalities, by which Regie's identity was proved, he became possessor of five hundred pounds, less ten per cent for fees, and had to sign an agreement in which he agreed to pay back seven hundred, though he did not trouble to work it out.

That was not Regie's last visit to Mr. Jacobson. It was such a delightful way of obtaining money that he paid several more, until the moneylender pulled him up by suggesting that some of the principal should be repaid.

Regie's reply was to request Mr. Jacobson to end his life in a particularly unpleasant manner.

But a month later, alas! he was there again.

"Ah, Mister Maxwell, I was just writing you," exclaimed the moneylender. "Butcher that, I want another two hundred pounds," rejoined Regie. "You must go elsewhere. I lend you no more."

"But," demanded Regie contemptuously, "I don't see the security good enough."

"The reply staggered him."

"No id is not," old man Maxwell is no good."

"An' what's that?" cried Regie in amazement.

"I tell you Maxwell and Son will be bankrupt soon, and before I lend you more money, you must have all back you have had." The moneylender paused and smiled cunningly as he added: "and the security must be different."

Regie almost reeled under the force of the blow, and without a word strode from the office. He made his way at once to a friend on the Exchange, who took him to a man who was acquainted with Mr. Maxwell's business.

"Don't say who I am," said Regie. "The man they want to shake his head."

"No," he said, "I am afraid Maxwell and Son are at the end of their tether. Mr. Maxwell is no more like he was a year ago than I am like the man in the moon. They say he had some heavy trouble about his back, but believe; anyway he has not been the same man since. I think his son refused to join the business, and the old man took it to heart dreadfully."

The speaker paused and stared curiously at Regie.

But Regie stalked out of the office as though he had heard nothing.

"Curious manner your friend has," remarked the man who had given the information.

"Yes, perhaps you'd have the same in his position. That's young Maxwell."

"Good heavens! Why on earth did you stop me?"

"Because I wanted him to hear. It's the first real medicine he's had, and it'll do him good."

A few minutes later, Regie stalked into the general office of Maxwell and Son, and handed his card to a clerk.

A moment afterwards he stood in his father's room.

"Why have you come, Regie?" asked the father.

"This is Maxwell and Son, isn't it, Dad? Well, I'm the son, and I've come to join."

And a moment later the old man's arms were round his boy, and both their eyes were wet.

Maxwell and Son's now more flourishing than ever it was. Every morning father and son drive up in the motor, and very often Mr. Maxwell junior (now Alice Maxwell), accompanied them. She does not go with them now, but later on she will again, and Stephen Maxwell, junior, will go with them. He is a bonny little chap, and his grandparents are living their days over again with him.

A LITTLE TOO THICK

Softly he inserted his latchkey. And softly he let himself in. And softly he stepped up the staircase. And softly he entered his bedroom.

"Little fishes be praised! She was sleeping."

With a silent prayer of thanks he began to disrobe. But suddenly he was arrested by a movement from the bed, and he divined under it.

"Edward!" said the voice of his wife.

Edward did not respond.

"Edward, my dear, my spouse."

Still Edward did not respond.

"You'd better come out, Edward," he observed calmly, "for I've got a letter for you."

"Ugh! I smell my soul," exclaimed Edward, creeping out shamefacedly. "How extraordinary! I must have been dreaming that I was not morning!"

A prominent gentile-man of the Middle West, in making a purchase at the town of Mirror, on which he intends to erect a business building at once, has written a letter to the Transcontinental Townsite Co., which makes it apparent that good service brings other desirable results than directly increase patronage for the trains. He says: "I have great confidence in the future of the country and just as much in the Grand Trunk Pacific. I may say I have been west three or four times. I was courteously dealt with, received splendid accommodation, and traveled smoothly and safely over the G.T.P. It is my confidence only in the G.T.P. that induces me to take this 'Flyer' at a business site which I will investigate after buying."

King Frederick, Ruler of Denmark, Died Very Suddenly in Hamburg

Striking Figure Removed From European Royalty by Death of Julian of Monmouth and His Throne in Treble Capacity of Scholar, Soldier and Philanthropist.

London, May 15.—King Frederick VIII., of Denmark, died suddenly this morning at Hamburg.

King Frederick suffered a serious illness some years ago. While taking his customary walk he had a sudden seizure and was compelled to return. He suffered a chill, but the real nature of his malady was not disclosed except that it was announced that his symptoms showed a "little fever arising from slight inflammation of the lungs."

While he showed rapid recovery he suffered a relapse two weeks later, and considerable anxiety was expressed by members of the court as to his condition.

On April 11, the King and Queen left Copenhagen for the Riviera.

PROCLAIMED KING IS DEATH

Christian Frederick was proclaimed King of Denmark as Frederick VIII. on January 30, 1908, after the death of Christian IX., the aged King who was dean of the crowned heads of Europe, father of King George of Greece, of the Queen-mother Alexandra of Great Britain, the empress dowager of Russia, and grandfather of King Haakon VII. of Norway.

A POPULAR MONARCH.

King Frederick VIII. was born at Copenhagen, June 3, 1843. He was as popular with the people of Denmark as was his father.

At the wish of his parents, he was brought up, with great simplicity. Frederick saw his younger brother and his own son become joint-heirs of the throne of Greece and Norway, respectively, while he himself was still an heir apparent.

NOTED FOR CULTURE.

King Frederick was noted for his culture, and possessed many foreign distinctions. While seldom openly identifying himself with political questions he took an active part in all public movements.

He was a long time chancellor of the Copenhagen university and head of the Freemasons of Denmark. He was well known as a promoter of philanthropic objects. His interest in the army, of which he was once inspector, was most keen.

Determined Suicide

(Lacombe Globe)
"Canada has ruined me, and now I say farewell. I have not killed anyone but myself, and would not do that if I knew I would be of any use."

(Sgd.) TYRE JONES AMES

Leaving the above message nailed to the door of his home, T. J. Ames, a well known farmer of this district, whose farm is the N.E. qr. 26-29-1, W. 5th, locked his doors, put on his best clothes and, lying down on a bed room, he placed a 44 calibre revolver to his left temple, and blew his brains out.

The tragedy took place on the 20th of last month, and the body was not discovered until the 8th of this month, after the victim had been dead over twenty days.

Ames was a man with a morose disposition, and was feared by his neighbors on account of his violent temper. He had previous to coming to this district served a term in Brandon asylum, but had been freed as cured. He lived alone on his homestead, and has no relatives in Alberta except a married sister who resides in Blackfalds.

The first to discover the lonely tragedy was a man named Warren, who called at Ames' house and found the message on the door. He telephoned to an officer of the Mounted Police who called Dr. Sharpe, the coroner, and together they went into the house.

It was a ghastly sight that met the gaze of the policeman and the coroner when they entered Ames' bedroom. The man lay on the bed partly dressed, clutching in his lifeless hand the revolver with which he shot himself. The whole top of the man's head was blown off and parts of his brains were found scattered about the room.

Ames, it is stated, had an attack of insanity some time ago, from which he seemed to have recovered. Of late he has been acting strangely and has been threatening to shoot the neighbors. He seemed to have the idea that everybody was working against him.

He would startle strangers who happened to call at his place by threatening them and giving them so long to get off his premises.

Neighbors said that when Ames threatened to kill anyone he added that he would not be taken alive.

Coroner Sharpe was satisfied that the man had died by his own act and decided that it was unnecessary to hold an inquest.

Ames was in comfortable circumstances. He had a splendid farm, a fine bunch of cattle and horses and had over $1000 to his credit in the Union Bank here.

WHY HE DID NOT DRINK.

"I read the other day of four young men riding in a Pullman car, chatting merrily together. At last one of them said, 'Boys, I shall not drink today.' Two of them consented; the other shook his head and said, 'No, I cannot. What?' exclaimed I, I am happy that you become pious! Are you going to be a missionary?"

"No fellows," he replied, "I am not specially pious, and I may not become a missionary, but I have determined not to drink another drop, and I will tell you why."

I had some business in Chicago with an old pawnbroker, and as I stood before his counter talking about it, there came in a young man about my age, and threw down upon the counter a little bundle. When the pawnbroker opened it, he found it was a pair of baby shoes, with the buttons a trifle worn.

The old pawnbroker seemed to have some heart left in him, and he said: 'Look here, you could not tell your baby's shoes for drink.' 'Never mind, Cohen; baby is at home dead, and does not need the shoes. Give me ten cents for a drink.'

"Now, fellows, I have a wife and baby at home myself, and when I saw what liquor could do in degrading that husband and father, I made up my mind that God helping me, another drop of that stuff should never pass my lips again."

TOBACCO, POOLROOMS, PROFANITY AND BOYS.

Not very long ago we received an earnest letter from a highly-esteemed Christian worker in the West, telling of a lad of fifteen who had learned to frequent poolrooms and use tobacco; and asking us what was being done in the church generally to save our boys from these accompanying evils.

We have been thinking over the matter since and looking around to see, as far as we were able in our limited fashion, what answer must be given to such a question.

So far as we can discover, our preachers will preach, as of old, that our boys should shun temptation of all kinds, and gambling, profanity and tobacco are no more spared to day than they were in other days.

And in our Sunday Schools we are persuaded that the teaching is largely of the same kind. And in a few schools there is the circulation of a pledge against these evils, which is largely signed by the younger scholars at least.

And yet our attention has been called to this lad and the other, who at sixteen or seventeen years of age are accustomed to gamble a little, swear a little, and smoke a good deal.

And yet these boys were born in Methodist homes, and all their lives have been under Methodist influence; clubs have been established to try to help matters, but unless the most careful supervision is exercised we find that Methodist household or football or other teams are accompanied by both tobacco and profanity.

What shall we do? Is there anything to be done which we have not yet tried? We do not know of any thing, and we do not look for any thing. We believe the chief source of the difficulty lies in the home.

It is hard to persuade a boy that smoking is wrong when father smokes. It is hard to make him understand that an oath is a sin when father swears. The father owes it to his boy to live a clean life in every sense.

But that is not enough. The father must be interested in his boy, and he must take ample time to show that interest. It is not any excuse to plead a press of business, for a few dollars more or less at the end of life do not count at all against a ruined child. The father must take time to know his boy, and he should be a big brother to him.

It does seem to us one of the most pathetic things that a Christian father should have to appeal to some other man to be a big brother to his child.

But suppose the father fails, what then? Then the church must step in and somehow must "get a grip on Harry." The truth is that in many of our churches the devil seems to be the only one who has any time for this work, or any success in it.

And yet, if we would save the boys, we must find time. The method is not material; it may be boys' clubs or classes or by inviting the boys into the home; it may be by Boy Scout work; it may be in some other way;—the way is not material, but the work must be done.

This work ought to be done by men, but if the men will not do it, only let us see to it that somehow, by some means, the "boys" are kept within the Shepherd's fold. Surely a church ought to be able to hold her own children. If she cannot, there must be a fatal leak somewhere.

Dandruff Germs Must Go

In Canada the dandruff germs must go. The war of extermination has been declared. The battle has begun, and already thousands of intelligent Canadians have permanently rid themselves of this filthiness.

Today it is no more necessary for a man to have dandruff in his hair than to have tartar on his teeth.

Dandruff can never be cured until the small, aggravating and indomitable dandruff germ is conquered and destroyed.

And millions of dandruff germs have been destroyed, thanks to the makers, Girty Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

Red Deer West will appeal to your inborn love of pretty home surroundings.

Football

The C.P.R. won from the Town on Wednesday night last by 3-2. Both teams had been strengthened since last games and it was a pretty good game. Rev. Moore was on the Town lineup and scored their first goal on a fine long shot. The half the Firemen scored four of their goals, and though they were weak in shooting, they got in three goals during the game. The Town got their second goal on a penalty. W. H. Halley refereed.

The Firemen easily won from the School on Friday night by 5-0. The School were weak and disorganized, and could offer no effective resistance to their opponent's forwards. R. Hewson, in goal for the School, played well and stopped several hard shots, but for the most part the scoring shots came from such a short distance that it was impossible to reach them. The Firemen scored shortly after the start and kept the ball in School territory the most of the half. They played a pretty good combination and scored four of their goals in this part of the game. They had a penalty in this half but Heyward failed to convert. After the half the Firemen let up a bit and the School forwards came up a little better, but were never dangerous. The Firemen were close on the School goal several times but only scored one goal in this half. J. Houtchinson refereed.

Red Deer Uniteds go to Didsbury on the 24th, and the C.P.R. team go to Calgary.

Equal Rights to All

There is considerable criticism in town over the action of the Council in reducing the taxes of the Townsite Company by some $60,000. The opinion openly expressed is that the Company, by refusing to put their land on the market, are withholding the progress of the town, especially the south end, and it is felt that the land should be put on the market at the earliest opportunity. By reducing their taxes the town is only encouraging the townsites people to hold their land a little longer. The townsites people should be in the same class as other citizens, and should not be shown any more favors.

Poplar Ridge

The Misses Margaret and Esther Kirkland, who have been visiting Mrs. Wilson's brother arrived from England last Saturday, and intend settling in Alberta.

Leslieville

Inspector Boyce has been out inspecting the schools in this district.

Mrs. A. N. McKinnon and family have returned to Leslieville, and are living in their new home.

The church has had a very prosperous year in the past, and we all hope the coming one will be just as prosperous.

Mrs. Tom McLean, of Calgary, who has been visiting here, sister, Mrs. George Thompson, returned to Red Deer yesterday.

Mrs. McCormick and daughter, who have been visiting friends here for a few weeks, returned to Red Deer, which place they intend making their home.

The C.N.R. are putting in their water tank and siding at Leslieville. They are going right ahead with the work now, and expect to reach the Mountain House soon.

There will be a box social held in the Leslieville school on Friday eve, May 31st. A good programme will be given. The proceeds will go to the "Leslieville Athletic Association." Ladies please bring boxes.

The annual election of officers for Bethel Union Church was held in the church on May 13th. The following officers were elected: Board of Management—President, Alex Sim; Secretary, George Bailey; Treasurer, Ralph Patterson; and Messrs. Godwin, Lester, W. McKinnon, John Reilly. Entertainment Committee—Ralph Patterson, Fred McNeil, A. N. McKinnon, Miss Will McKinnon, Miss Mabel A. Reilly and Miss Beatrice Foreman. Miss Mabel A. Reilly was elected organist for the coming year.
